Society Folk Are Seen as "Extras" in "The Duchess of Doubt."

Society people of several large American cities appear in the support of Emmy Wehlen in "The Duchess of Doubt," the five-part Metro wonderplay presented by B. A. Rolfe and directed by George D. Baker. Many of the scenes for this comedy drama for the screen were made in famous winter resorts of Florida, at Palm Beach, St. Augustine and Jacksonville, and guests at the fashionable hotels showed the greatest interest in the production. Many of them acted as "extra people" in the great ball-room scene, and in other scenes where ensembles are used. Mr. Baker found them easy to direct, willing and anxious to obey instructions, and they have added much to the distinction of many of the scenes in "The Duchess of Doubt."

Emmy Wehlen as Clover Ames in this feature screen play is mistaken for a Duchess, and decides to enjoy the attentions that a real Duchess would receive. She has fashionable society at her feet. One of her "slaves" is a young man who boldly proclaims that he is nothing but a ribbon-clerk. However, he isn't and that fact forms the foundation for one of the most attractive screen stories yet produced by Metro.

TREASURE FOUND.

(By International News Service.)

Youngstown, Ohio, March 18.—Steam shovel diggers employed by the Carbon Limestone Company here unearthed an iron pot containing $115,000 in gold on the old Isaac Schaefer farm at Edinboro, Penna., East of here. The pot was found in an abandoned well. The money was placed in a Youngstown bank. For thirty years the Schaefer heirs hunted the buried treasure of a man who died without revealing the location of the hidden find.

The James Cate & Son Co., have installed new and improved machinery for milling pearl meal, corn flour, hominy and grits and are milling selected Christian county corn. REX TO-DAY.

"Six Shooter Andy."

Tom Mix has a stirring new play of the gold mining West in William Fox's "Six Shooter Andy."

Andy Crawford (Tom Mix) is making for Bannack, Nevada, where he hopes to get rich by panning. Near the town he finds Susan Allenby (Enid Markey) with her eight brothers and sisters. Susan's father is lying in the road dead, having been killed by one of the "gang" of Bannack whose leader was no less a man than sheriff, Tom Slade (Sam De Grasse.)

All go into the town. Andy fights for everything that is decent. He proves to be quicker with his gun than the wicked sheriff and in the end turns Bannack into a place where men get their just dues. He even balks the sheriff's designs on Susan. To do all this, however, needs some clever acting, some quick gun play. Tom Mix, man of the plains, does some hair-raising stunts in winning the girl and cleaning up Bannack. Susan's eight brothers and sisters prove a big help to Tom.

The story is taken from a page in the history of the gold rush of sixty-odd years ago. Conditions like those shown in the picture are gone and past, but they were times that tried men's souls.

Prices of all farm products are higher today than ever before in our memory; and more especially is it true with Tobacco, Corn and Live Stock, and this is where we shine in North Christian. We grow the finest type of dark tobacco which is now selling at $15 to $22 per 100 lbs. on the local market. MAY BE FATAL ACCIDENT

GRANDSON OF J. A. MILES INJURED AT GILBERTS-VILLE FRIDAY.

The six-year-old son of A. L. Miles, of Gilbertsville, and grandson of Mr. J. A. Miles, of this city, was the victim of an accident last Friday afternoon that may cause his death. The little fellow was playing, when he fell and his left eye was pierced by an umbrella rib. The sight of the eye is unimpaired, but it is feared that the rib pierced the brain. The lad was taken to a hospital in Paducah. The little fellow's grandfather went to Paducah Saturday, in answer to a telegram, but returned Sunday. Mrs. Miles, the child's grandmother, went to Paducah yesterday morning to be at his bedside.

PRINCESS TO-MORROW.

Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne, "the sovereigns of the screen," who are idolized by the public, are co-starring in Metro's forthcoming Super-Feature, "Their Comfort," directed by Edwin Carewe and produced under the personal supervision of Maxwell Karger.

These favorite stars have reached their equal eminence by different roads. Mr. Bushman achieved success in dramatic productions before coming to the screen, whereas Miss Bayne has acted only in motion pictures, never having stepped foot upon the stage. In fact she was a schoolgirl until she appeared in her first picture.

DIED AT HOSPITAL.
